SECURITY STRATEGY SERVICE

WHAT IS YOUR SECURITY STRATEGY?

Where to begin? The development of an effective security strategy should begin with an overview of intentions and expectations the organization holds for managing risk. By determining the direction, goals and objectives, then factoring in the gaps that exist within the current program, one can develop a holistic view of the security needs and desired state of the organization.

SO, WHERE DO YOU START YOUR SECURITY STRATEGY?

All Covered offers a phased security strategy service, where we provide the expertise and the know-how to develop a security strategy for your organization. Whether you need to establish a program baseline or would like to create a well-defined and proven security strategy, All Covered is here to help.

GETTING STARTED

All Covered has in-depth experience helping organizations optimize their security into a resilient, but manageable security program. All Covered's security strategy services are an effective, timely, and cost-conscious way to develop your security program. We offer a dedicated service that will evaluate the current environment and make detailed improvement recommendations. Our approach to building an enterprise information security strategy can be summarized in these six basic steps:

1. Establish a security governance function within the organization to provide strategic direction
2. Assess the current state of the security program and organizational readiness
3. Understand where the organization is headed and drive the security strategy in the same direction
4. Develop a roadmap of the desired state of the security program and how to get there
5. Develop a detailed plan for the phased implementation of the strategy
6. Measure the effectiveness of implemented controls and demonstrate progress against goals on a continual basis

Never assume when strategizing your security program!
